

Tracey Jennix is a long-standing member of Prospect's leadership team, primarily supporting our services for Employers. With a varied history in Human Resources and staffing, Tracey possesses a comprehensive understanding of employers' needs within various settings and industries. Tracey was an integral part of the service design and roll out of Prospect's Forces@WORK program, assisting veterans and first responders as they transition to new careers. Tracey's unwavering passion for empowering individuals to realize their full potential and assisting employers in accessing and retaining top talent has been a constant driving force throughout her career. As an 'army brat' herself, Tracey has lived in almost every Canadian province, and is now proud to call herself an Albertan after 24 years of residing here.
